GOING HOME TO DIE.

One day last week a sick soldier, returning to his home in Connecticut, was carried on board the steamer Commonwealth, of the Boston, Stonington and New York line. He lay upon a sofa in the saloon of this splendid steamer, pale, haggard, with livid lips, and eyes drooping and heavy from weakness and exhaustion. His limbs had lost their strength and firmness, and the wasted body, emaciated from suffering and racked by rheumatic pains, was replete and helpless as an infant's. A loud, hollow cough expressed more intensely than words could have done; the old, old story of anguish, and wasting, and death that has wrong many a heart, and is associated with the desolations of many a New England home. Thus far on his way the young soldier had come assisted by strangers, and was now, almost fainting with exhaustion, on the last stage of his journey, before he reached his relatives and the house of his early youth.

"Are you from the army?" asked a passenger who, attracted by the pale, haggard face, and dark heavy eyes, stopped a moment at his side.

"Yes, I belonged to the 50th New York Regiment."

"How long have you been sick?"

"I lay five months ago in an hospital prostrated by rheumatic fever. When nearly recovered I returned to camp—two sons, I suppose—and while on duty about twelve weeks back, was exposed to a drenching rain, and took a violent cold. Illumination began the work; that cold I suppose will finish it. It settled on my lungs. I haven't known a day's rest since. It has been hard, I assure you. The surgeon obtained my discharge. A physician took me under his care in Wyoming Valley, and I hoped health would return with the spring. But neither the spring air nor medicines availed, and when my money was nearly gone I started for New York. It has been very trying and wearisome. The long travel has worn me terribly; but I do so long for home. I shall get there to-morrow, and his lips quivered, and tears stood in the dark, heavy eyes.

"Have you parents living?"

"My mother is dead. She has been dead twelve years. My father is quite aged. He is eighty years old. He hasn't long to live, but perhaps I—" The voice again trembled, and the conversation was interrupted by protracted coughing that broke over the pale lips, hollow and melancholy as the echo of the tomb.

Some of the passengers gave the young soldier such attention as lay in their power, while a pleasant-faced, dark-eyed Portuguese, one of the attendants belonging the boat, waited upon him with a kindness and sympathy that were really touching. He was not alone in this good work. An officer of the boat, notwithstanding the pressure of his duties, found a moment to express words of sympathy, and to render to the invalid whatever conveniences and refreshment the steamer afforded. From this day forth that boat, its officers, attendants, and all connected with it, are favorites with us. Men who honor patriotism, and have kind words and kind deeds for the suffering whom God has thrown in their way, are worthy of respect, and it is a pleasure to give them confidence and praise.

Going home to die! How many trembling lips have uttered these touching words, since first treason lifted its treacherous hand and covered our land with blood! How many anguished hearts have responded to them in painful sympathy and bitterest grief!

COLENSO AND THE VENTRILLOQUIST.

It is said that Dr. Colenso lately went to hear the performance of a ventriloquist, and that before the performance began, the ventriloquist mentioned to a bystander that it was rumored that the notorious African bishop was in the house. The gentleman to whom this remark was made, replied,

"Quite natural. The bishop's one of your own profession."

"How so?" said the ventriloquist.

"Because," said the other, "the bishop has two voices. With the one voice he reads in the church, 'If they believe not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, although one rose from the dead; but out of the church the bishop says, with another voice, that Moses is not at all to be believed; and, in the fact, did not write the books that passed under his name in the time of our Lord, as well as mine."

Whether the bi-hop overheard this colloquy we know not, but he was standing by at the time, and soon after left the place.—English paper.

TRAPPERS IN COUNCIL.

There is no durable good of any kind, soever, whose name may not be prestuted to the vilest purposes. How often has the world been deluged with blood and the most merciless atrocities committed in the holy name of Religion. Even then have the most diabolical and heinous irregularities been committed in the sacred cause of Liberty! But it is not either of these terrible trials that is subcribed upon the banner of the review against the government of humanity. In the South, the treasonable and unmanly motto of "State Rights." In the North, the confederates of the traitors with some of the South, are surmounted with the unchristian "Peace." Peace—the word by which the savior of the Savior of mankind is known to the world, and which to the unenlightened, narrow-minded, and bleeding nation, would appear to convey so much that is intended to attract, edify, and invite hope—proves that is to give us the "oil of joy" for the consolation of our national despair. Under this auspice there have been several assemblages of men, the last and most pestiferous of all having been held in the city of New York, on the evening of Wednesday last. The whole of the vast array of difficult and important questions of policy that sprung out of the formation of our popular form of government, and which have, to a greater or less extent, engaged the ablest minds which have been produced since its organization, were disposed of by the arch-demon of this copperhead cabal, by a single dash of the pen. How him as he speaks in the following resolution which was passed by the Convention:

"Resolved, That under the Constitution there is no power in the Federal Government to coerce the States, or any number of them by military force. If the power of coercion exists at all, it is a local power, and not military. That the Democratic party, if true to its own time-honored principles, cannot sustain a war against sovereign states; that we believe it to be the duty of that party to proclaim these sentiments boldly; that the people may feel that there is at last one political organization which will deal honestly, independently, and truthfully with them!"

This is indeed a full and unequivocal endorsement and affirmation of the doctrine of John C. Calhoun, and the whole race of nullifiers, who have sprung from him and his compeer Hayne. That noble exercise of the gigantic intellect of the God-like Webster, to crush out the destructive doctrines of these arch-agitators, is hereby declared to have been in vain, although a world's approbation and admiration for more than a quarter of a century, have confirmed that effort as one of the sublimest triumphs of human genius. Heretofore, also, the act of Andrew Jackson, in 1823, in coercing the State of South Carolina into her due subjection to the national government, instead of having claimed as declared to have violated the Federal Constitution, and acted arbitrarily wrong again in the claimed reserved rights of the State of South Carolina. But many of these very men who are now sustaining Wood and his race of Copperheads, were in political life at that time, and the rest of the "sympathizers," who have entered political life since, have learned their political creeds from that same Andrew Jackson and his political descendants. It is all change in—a gigantic humbug.

If there be no Nationality in this government, or earlier, if this government be not a Nationality, but a patchwork of States under a voluntary association from which each may withdraw at liberty, then, in every contract that has been made by the States with each other, by the States with the general government, or by the general government with the world, there is a fraud—a gigantic, world-wide swindle. We have entered into contracts and permitted other nations to enter into contracts with us founded entirely upon our Nationality, and which were founded upon the faith of any other confederation. Then again, the resolution affirms that if the Government have any right of coercion at all, it is a military right. This is all nonsense, save the military is, really, the only right of coercion possessed by the Nationality. It is only the States, as individuals of the Nationality, that can give up in defiance of the Central Power, and it has a right to put forth its armed arm of military force, to prevent a part from wantonly riddling the whole, and compelling every member to resume its proper duties, in order to save the whole body—that is, to prevent the destruction of the Nationality, and in order to preserve the safety and well-being of each member, in any of each component State. In fact, so far as the legal relation of the Nationality to the individual State is concerned, it seems to me that, instead of the legal being the only authority left to the Nationality, over the States, it is a right advisory, and not compulsory. But the whole thing is the old fable of "blow hard, blow cold." These men are anti-slavery, Southern slaveocracy, and wish to hold their rule upon this nation now by armed treachery and rebellion, because they have lost the power to do it, as they have often done it before, by the quietest and less destructive means of the ballot box, assisted by political corruption and fraud of the most damning kinds: This is the simple question now before us. Shall Jeff Davis and his rebel slaveocracy be "set to judge" this land, with Fernando Wood and his base myrmidons as a Cabinet Council, while every good man or politically pure man, or patriotic man is proscribed—and that under a false pretense for peace—or shall we rise to a man and band by a righteous public indignation, these Northern traitors from their stools, and then with a "high hand" and an outstretched arm, more terrible than "an army with banners" shall we not in exalted ranks of all ages and conditions rush to the rescue, and wipe out this disgraceful rebellion, and prove to the world that Freedom must ever be the watchword of Free men, and, that, although the sole abiding foundation of this Republic, as it must always be of all Republics, is the choice of the people, our foundation has not been destroyed by cauksing treason, but that there is still left virtue enough in this people, to save the Republic.

Local News Items.

Andrew Bray, who was arrested for an assault upon Officer Freeborn, has been discharged upon payment of costs, the complainant having consented to withdraw the complaint, at the intercession of Owen Vaughn, Esq., of North Kingstown in whose employ Bray now is, and the further consideration that Bray has been in the service during the war of the rebellion, and now lies a son still serving in the Federal army. Added to this, it appeared that he was a poor man with a family of six children, and when himself, in indigence, quiet and hard working man. This was deemed a preferable course to shutting him up in prison, and thus making his helpless family the innocent sufferers of his punishment, and the cost for an act committed under the influence of a bodily excitement.

The costs being considerable, especially for a laboring man, and his being arrested and taken to jail at quite a distance from his family, constituted no small infliction, so that he cannot be said to have altogether escaped punishment.

"Go and sin no more," was, in this case, as much the declaration of humanity, as it was the dictate of a sound judgment.

The Fortwino Breivior statement of the slaying to-day, of the ship attached to the U. S. Naval Academy on their annual summer cruise, we take from the Mercury of to-day:

To day the Mesdieu, Mardon, and America attached to the Naval Academy as practice vessels start on their summer cruise. The Mesdieu has 130 Midshipmen on board and will visit during its cruise, some one port in Ireland, England, France, Portugal, Spain, the Azores and Madeira. No particular port is designated, but it is left to the discretion of the commanding officer.

The following is a list of the officers attached: Lieut. Commanding, S. B. Luce, commanding Lieutenant, A. T. Mullen, T. L. Straus, W. F. Sampson, H. E. Pickering.

Acting Ensigns, P. H. Cooper, Pierre D'Orleans, Captain, W. A. Hitchcock.

Paymaster, H. P. Tuttle.

Asst Surgeon, D. F. Bickett.

Asst Prof. G. A. Osborne, Asst Instructor of Navigation.

Cook, Charles L. Harris.

The Mardon has 94 Midshipmen on board and is ordered to cruise between Portland, Me., and Philadelphia, Penn.

The following officers are attached:

Lieut. Commander, E. O. Matthews, commanding.

Lieutenants, T. F. Kane, and J. D. Marvin.

Acting Asst Paymaster, A. J. Wright.

Midshipmen, Acting Lieutenant, W. R. Hoff.

F. E. Evans, C. V. Gridley, R. C. Irvin, W. B. Whiting.

Clerk, William L. Tilley.

The America will accompany the Mardon, in charge of Midshipmen D. B. B. Cassell, and a crew of ten Midshipmen will be detailed from day to day for the purpose of instruction in handling a fore-and-aft vessel.

The three vessels are to return to this port by the last of September when those Midshipmen who are now absent on leave, will have returned.

Between the 20th and 30th of July from 160 to 175 new candidates will be admitted to the School and by the last of September all vacancies are to be filled, so that by the 1st of October all the Midshipmen will be present and the studies commence in all the departments.

The funeral of John R. Gogginhill, the young man whose end death by an injury from a horse, we reported on Wednesday last, occurred on Thursday afternoon, at the church of the Holy Cross, in Middletown. The services were conducted by Rev. Hobart Williams, Rector of St. Mary's Church, Portsmouth, and were of an unusually solemn character.

The long and grounds were filled with a large concourse of relatives and sympathizing friends. At the conclusion of the services, the remains were buried in the Coggeshall burial ground, in Middletown.

ARTICLES SALE OF BOOKS.—Mr. H. Dayton, will commence this evening, at the Store No. 178 Thames Street, Rhode Island Union Bank Building, an Auction sale of a large and well selected stock of books in every department of literature, consisting of History, Biography, Poetry, Fiction, Travel, and Adventure; also a fine stock of Family and Pocket Books, Prayer Books, Almanacs, Juveniles, Gift Books, Annuals &c., together with a fine stock of Photographic Albums; the books are standard and well bound.

This sale will be continued for some days at half past 7 o'clock p.m.

Mr. Dayton was recently a publisher, in the city of New York, and published the "Prince of the Cincinnati Gazette," who accompanied Vallandigham on his journey to the rebel lines, relates the following incident:

"After an hour passed in conversation there was an effort made to obtain a little sleep, and Mr. Vallandigham went to bed, but did not fall into a sleep, when Col. McElroy waked him, informing him that it was daylight, and time to move. Some pointed remark having been made about the morning, Mr. Vallandigham raised himself upon his elbow and said, dramatically,

"Nest's emuls are burnt out and joined dry Stand, Up on the mity mountain top."

He had evidently forgotten the remaining line of the quotation; but it seemed so applicable to his own case, in view of the wrathful feelings of the soldiers toward him, that I could not forbear adding.

"I must be gone and live, or stay and die."

The extreme appropriateness of the quotation started every one who heard it, including Mr. Vallandigham himself."

The lessons for the afternoon or evening service are:

First: Genesis 6th chapter.

Second: 1st Timothy, 8th chapter.

We call attention to the advertisement of Mr. Wm. H. Bliss, of new goods, at his store No. 117 Thames Street. Mr. Bliss has just finished and arranged a full, new and valuable stock of all articles of employ, and general house furnishing goods. Any one "selling up house-keeping," will find there everything necessary for house furnishing throughout Fall and examine them, and his gentlemanly clerk, Mr. Franklin will show you every attention.

Gen. T. W. Sherman.

We are very glad to learn that, at last, this able officer has been allowed a position in which his abilities may be exhibited. He is a native of this city, and hence, we feel, in his military career, more than usual interest.

We think now that he was unfairly dealt by when the Government recalled him from the Department of the South West, after he had so laboriously made all the preparations for a successful campaign against the rebels in his Department; into which labor other men were called to enter, thus robbing him of a need of prudence, which he had laboriously earned. Gen. Emory, it appears, has assumed command of the defence of New Orleans, and Gen. Thomas W. Sherman has taken command of General Emory's Division, and has moved up the river so as to be enabled to operate against the right flank of the enemy at Port Hudson. A correspondence quoted in the Mercury of to-day, thus speaks of Gen. Sherman,

"With a soldier like Sherman we may feel the utmost security in regard to the result of his operations, and feel assured that the rebel (General Gardner) will have to do his best in order to prevent this part of his position from being turned." The latest accounts show that Vicksburg will be invested by the four Generals Grover, Weitzel, Angier and Sherman, with the co-operation of Gen. Banks, together with a bombardment constantly from the river by our fleet.

Our despatch, yesterday informed us, that the garrison, said to consist of some ten thousand rebels, is but scarcely provisioned, and without hope of reinforcement or supplies.

Since writing the above, we received our despatch of to-day, by which it will be seen, that Port Hudson was attacked on the 29th and that Gen. Sherman, while gallantly leading on his men, to the charge, was severely wounded and taken to New Orleans. He has shown himself to be a brave General, and while we regret that he has been lost, for a time, to the service by a wound, we are glad to learn, that although serious, it is not a dangerous one.

Gen. Sherman is now in this city, where she resides since the departure of her husband for the South.

Our Boston Correspondence.

Boston, June 4, 1863.

At this season of the year Boston wears an exceedingly pleasant, cheerful look. The streets are very lively, busy with its thousand trades, its pleasures, its society, its daily life... And for one accustomed to the intense bustle of the Metropolis, this very business repose, if it may so be called, is contradistinction to the over-boiling day of New York. Indeed, it is. We are a soothng day dream, though it has a force and vigor which gives zest and impulsive. Boston is a place to be loved at once. New York is a place that requires long living in and accustoming in fact to set the heart into loving. But I think both good cities have strong attractions, and ardent devotees. There is a sadness about Boston that rather offends the independent, careless New York liver. Yet in this "hub"—this Puritanic city—intellectual, thrifty, sober, church-going—is much to admire, much to record, much to gossip over. How the old famous names and places stand at one walking theoreticals! Why it seems as if Boston was a store-house of historic interests packed with memories. It has much changed since I was here last. Now buildings have been raised—palatial affairs; old streets cleaned in face; new names; new faces; the city extended and beautified; showing the enterprise and activity of its citizens. No rusticities here. Great does not grow old. And never will, I ween.

A fine collection of paintings are on exhibition at the Athenaeum. It is the yearly exhibition prolonged. Art is worshipped here, and artists are laden with undreamt fame. Bierstadt's famous "Rocky mountain" is being shown in the Studio Building, and, by the way, this building is the home of Boston artists. It is here that the gentlemen of the panel meet for congregate. A fine Gothic architecture, richly colored, very beautiful, very pleasing to the taste and eye.

Its mirror of the traits of Boston to longer into the old fashioned book-store of Ticknor & Fields, to spend a few hours in calling over their fine stock of books, and in exchanging literary gossip with authors and lovers of literature. It is the latter club to literary now. A visit to Boston is not complete without giving these gentlemanly publications a call. You know it is the metropolis of the "Athens."

Mr. John Drew is having a fine success at the Museum in the adoption from Mr. Wood's popular novel of "Aurora Floyed" and at the Boston Theatre. Mrs. A. D. Bowes of Philadelphia is running out her stock of pieces to moderate houses. Auditions are going into the dull season. The theatrical creation is neat.

The long and grounds were filled with a large concourse of relatives and sympathizing friends. At the conclusion of the services, the remains were buried in the Coggeshall burial ground, in Middletown.
